To Whom It May Concern:

I feel the lawsuit against Microsoft should not be allowed to continue. I feel the current set of measures agreed to by Microsoft and the Department of Justice are sufficient and to continue litigation will unnecessarily prolong this country's current economic problems. I feel the final outcome will be the same anyway since the current set of sanctions are fair and reasonable. I feel that this litigation has undermined this country's faith in the future of the entire technology sector. It has done much more harm than any transgressions ever made by Microsoft. I am glad that this happened, but I think it's now time to move on. I hope we will soon be able to put this situation behind us. I'm sure there are many other more constructive ways to use the court's time.

Sincerely,
Mark Hamblin
